Today's Quiet Moment (By the Rev. James R. Galley) Pastor Bristol Presbyterian Church

Eternal Father, God of Love, look upon us this day in mercy, and bestow upon us that which we need for successful living. We know that apart from Thee we can do nothing. We know that without Thy strength we are weak and helpless. We look unto Thee in our weakness that we might become strong through the exercise of Thy strength. Deliver us from confidence in man-made power and in human ingenuity, and let us always depend upon Thee, in Whom we live and move and have our being. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

SAVING OF SOAP IS ONE WAY TO SHARE IN THE WAR EFFORT

By Mary E. Jacoby
(Home Economics Representative)
Soap consumption is increasing. Whether this is because Americans are cleaner in wartime than in peacetime is open to question.

The most likely answer to this is that more people are working in industry. Women and girls, as well as men, in factories, shipyards, and railroad yards require more washing and bathing. Clothes of such workers become badly soiled and need quantities of soap to keep them clean.

This heavy demand on the soap supply makes it necessary for everyone to make soap reach as far as possible in order to save fat and glycerine, important for the manufacture of soap and essential war materials.

Use soft water when ever possible.

Use water softener instead of extra soap.

Remove the wrapper from cake soap so soap can dry and harden. Hard soap goes further than soft moist soap.

Keep the soap dish dry. Use only enough soap to make the right suds for laundering. Too much suds prevents the water from going through the fabric.

Dishes scraped and rinsed well will require less soap in washing.

Save all scraps of soap. Dried, they may be put through the food chopper and used as chips; melted, they may be used as soap jelly.

GRAND THEATRE

Uncle Sam proved himself the all-time big-time talent scout in the annals of show business when Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army" opened on Broadway, July 4, 1942. He brushed his fingers over Army camps from coast to coast and came up with a fat fistful of 250 boys accomplished in every phase of show business. They put on a show that played to solid "Standing Room Only" for three months and filled theatres every time in an enshrouding tour of twelve more cities. The boys in the box-office shoveled in more than two million dollars and shoveled it right over to Army Emergency Relief.

Now "This is the Army" comes to the Grand Theatre in a gorgeous Technicolor film produced by Warner Bros.

Have a Coca-Cola = What's the good word?

...or how to get along with folks

Your American soldier carries the keys to comradeship wherever he goes. Have a "Coke", says he to the eager youngsters at home, and it's like saying, What's the good word? It's a phrase that's understood in New Zealand or Newport, at home or in far-off places. Around the world Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become the gesture of good will, saying Let's be friends.

NEXT WEEK OPENS SEASON FOR BEAR IN PENNSYLVANIA

Bear Hunters Should Have Good Chances of "Bringing Home the Bacon"

PLENTY OF BEAR

Farmers In Northern Tier of Counties Are Suffering Losses

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10 — Bear hunters, says the State Game Commission, should have good chances of "bringing home the bacon" next week and at the same time help reduce damage in counties where the animals have been destroying domestic stock and beehives, eating standing corn, and robbing corn cribs.

According to Game officials, bears are causing farmers in many of the northern tier counties, especially McKean, Potter, Clinton, Tioga, Lycoming, Sullivan and Columbia, more annoyance than usual this year, all of which leads them to believe that there is a good bear crop for the taking. This year the season opens November 15th and closes November 20th, a full week.

Last season many bears, sufficiently fattened on apples and corn filched from orchards and fields adjoining their woodland abodes, retired to hibernation early and consequently were absent when visiting hunters came to look for them.

Early hibernation, together with the fact that the weather during the four-day season was extremely warm and dry, resulted in only 149 bears being bagged last year, whereas the Commission had hoped that at least 500 would be taken. Commission officials explained that is why the season was extended to six days this year.

The Commission hopes that weather conditions will be more favorable this season and that the bag may reach the 600 mark. It will have to come near that mark if bear damage is to be alleviated in the most seriously affected counties. Damage claims from January 1st to the end of September this year are way ahead of most previous years, the Commission having honored 52 claims and paid out $1,626.00 for the destruction of 129 sheep, 29 beehives, 1 cow and a calf. Under law a special fund of $3,000 annually is earmarked for paying bear damage claims, and the Commission is of the opinion that this year it will spend the full allocation.

Hunters In 3 Counties Protest Doe Season

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10 — Petitions to abrogate the antlerless deer season on December 13, 14 and 15 in Clinton, Potter and Cameron Counties have been filed, Ross L. Leffler, president of the Pennsylvania Game Commission announced today.

The Commission reports that all of the petitions appear to have met the preliminary requirements for filing information.

"It now becomes the Game Commission's duty to check these petitions carefully to determine their validity," Leffler stated. "To hasten the process each signer is being requested to certify to his residence and signature by prepaid post card, which will materially reduce the field investigation."

What the final result of the petitions from the three counties will be cannot be determined until the check is completed. In the meantime the filing of petitions for these three counties places over 12,000 applicants for antlerless deer permits in an unfortunate predicament. Should the season be abrogated in any county (1) the fees of the applicants will either be returned as requested, or (2) the applications will be transferred immediately in the order in which they were originally filed to one of the designated alternate counties in which the supply of permits has not previously been issued. If exhausted, the fees will be returned.

and all other Army routine, such as mounting guard. While the men worked at the studio, they were under Army discipline. They were paid $2.88 for quarters and rations (food and lodging), they reported to Camp TITA daily for reveille and retreat and marched in military columns to and from the set. On the set they were under the command of two top sergeants who worked in direct co-operation with the Warner assistant directors in seeing to it that the Curtiz' commands were carried out swiftly.

At one time, during the shooting of the picture, six different units were in work, setting a record for the Warner production department. However, through military co-operation, no hitches were encountered, and the shooting went off smoothly. Many days, there were as many as 500 men working on one set.

WAR PLANT CONVERTS

LIMA, O.—(INS)—Officials of the Lima Locomotive Works report that conversion of tank-building facilities to the manufacture of power shovels for the government is well underway.

With manufacture of tanks at an end, the capacity for heavy equipment will increase considerably, it was explained. The locomotive works discontinued manufacture of tanks after completing its quota.

The War At A Glance

escorted down from the north, probably from Buka or Rabaul, by a Japanese cruiser and two destroyers which were attacked several days ago.

Scant details were available of the fighting which developed in the vicinity of the Laruma River. In the area of the main beachhead, however, the United States troops consolidated their positions and extended control of surrounding territory.

Allied airmen supported the Marines, attacking the three main Jap air bases on Bougainville, in addition to helping resist the enemy landing. Aerial sorties also were carried out over New Ireland and The Netherlands East Indies.

Shipping targets were bombed off New Ireland, land installations were hammered on New Britain and the Ambon naval base was attacked and fires started.

The situation in the Southwest Pacific was, in short, best described by Navy Secretary Knox when he said that the Japs "are in a more critical condition than they ever have been before in this area."

Contributing greatly to the peril of the Jap position, was the only naval engagement between enemy and American units in the current campaign. In that action, the Nipponese suffered the loss or damage of at least 10 warships, including six heavy cruisers.

"To lose the use of six heavy cruisers right now for the Japanese was nothing short of disaster," Knox explained.

While the Nipponese were losing their important warships, the German navy was being hard-hit also. A joint statement of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, released by the Office of War Information, revealed that during the last three months the Nazis have lost 60 submarines.

In October, the statement added, the attrition rate of U-boat losses to merchant ship sinkings was "more satisfactory than in any previous month."

In Italy, the Germans gave indications of girding for a major stand along the 90-mile transpeninsular battlefield as torrential rains slowed the advance of the American Fifth Army.

The British Eighth Army, however, continued its march up the Adriatic coast. The Britons under Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery took up positions commanding the Sangro River which is only a mile away. Their push took Torino and Paglieta.

Parol activity occupied much of the Fifth Army's time, as it probed out various sectors of the enemy's positions along the Garigliano River. Prisoners were taken and divulged information indicating that the Nazi high command is determined to fight it out above that stream.

Pierce resistance was encountered by the Russians also, but still the Red army continued its advance. Moving out in a fan-shaped drive from newly-liberated Kiev, the Soviets drove ever nearer the Polish border.

After seizing the district center of Borodyanko, 23 miles northwest of the Ukraine capital, the Russian force kept on in the direction of the important rail junction of Korosten. On other sections of the long Russian front, successes were scored. Large numbers of the enemy killed or captured, and vast amounts of war materials either rendered useless or seized.

The Red army increased its threat to the Nazi garrison in the Crimea, extending its positions northeast and south of Kerch, which unofficial Moscow reports to the British radio said already had fallen.

Washington was concerned over the resignation as co-president of the French Committee of National Liberation of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud.

mittees throughout the 25 counties included in her district will be engaged all Winter on organization work for the gardens in 1944.

"We are endeavoring to establish community kitchens in the larger towns throughout the State where preserving and canning can be done on a large scale. In the smaller and distinctly rural communities, the gardens are too scattered and too distant from a central point to make the community kitchen practicable," she explained.

Mrs. Ross has been at the head of the food conservation work in Bucks county since the establishment of the County Council of Defense and is largely responsible for the establishment of large banks of canned foods new on hand at various points in the county.

Extra-Curricular Problems Told of by Sup't Snyder

not as yet been definitely determined.

Although in Bristol borough the crowded conditions are not faced such as they are in nearby Bristol Township, Mr. Snyder mentioned that this is really a problem today with many schools. Families have not settled in Bristol borough during the emergency to the extent they have in the surrounding areas, he added.

In regard to vocation problems, the superintendent of the Bristol schools mentioned the high school workers that school officials are asked to provide in various industries and to the stores at the Christmas season, this meaning a great adjustment and re-adjustment in order to provide service and yet to see that the students do not suffer in their school work. The manner in which the schools through vocational classes are training individuals for industry was also discussed at length by Mr. Snyder.

IT SEEMS Everyone MISSES LOUISE'S CHEERFUL VOICE

Louise Edwards was "a friend at court" in the eyes of thousands of our valued customers throughout the central section of Philadelphia.

Let fire or flood or other mishap interrupt electrical service by so much as a few moments, and it frequently was Louise's cheerful voice that greeted you when you called to see what could be done. Things were done, too, once Louise came to know of your need.

Things are getting done nowadays with Uncle Sam's SPARS down in St. Augustine, Florida, where Louise serves as a Quartermaster.

Like the nearly 1000 other Philadelphia Electric employees now in the armed forces, Louise has gotten into uniform and is putting her talents to work hurrying the victory.

Naturally, those of us who are left must take on extra responsibilities in seeing that both homes and war plants have the electricity they need when they need it. But being able to overcome difficulties is a proud tradition with all Philadelphia Electric employees. So depend upon it. Every last one of us is out to see that electricity stays on the job day and night.

SHE WATCHES THE SUPPLIES

Louise Edwards, who trained for the SPARS at Hunter College, New York, has been advanced to Seaman, First Class, and named Quartermaster in the SPARS barracks at St. Augustine, Florida.

SEND YOUR SCRAP TO WAR!—That's one way you can help. Go on a scrap-hunting expedition in your basement, attic, back yard or garage . . . collect all the idle iron, steel or rubber articles, as well as rags, burlap bags, manila rope you can find.
